Access to Web of Science Database

We are happy to inform you that the Ananda Rangapillai Library, Pondicherry University has obtained access to the Web of Science database through the eShodhSindhu (ESS) consortium, INFLIBNET. The database can be accessed via the Pondicherry University campus network and through the remote login facility.

Web of Science the premier multidisciplinary research citation indexing database provides faculty and researchers the most accurate, complete and objective platform for research discovery and analytics. It covers over 34,000 journals in more than 45 languages across the sciences, social sciences, and arts and humanities, with back files available from 2005. The citation linking feature enables users to navigate forward and backward through journal articles and proceedings (both journal- and book-based). The built-in Analyze Tool helps uncover hidden trends and patterns, provides insights into emerging fields of research, identifies leading researchers, institutions, and journals, and enables users to trace the development of specific research areas.
